Why do I need to store my new key on paper?

To protect your account, you need a password and access to your telephone or authentication application at sign-in. If you can't use your phone or app, you can sign in with your personal key instead.

For your privacy and security, login.gov does not store your password and personal key. Only you know them. Only you can access or share your personal information.

We require you to store your personal key outside your computer or mobile device so that it will be safe even if your devices are stolen or your online accounts are hacked.

If you don't have your personal key and you forget your password, the only way to keep your account safe is to verify that you are the legal owner.

What data Google collects

Things that make you “you”

When you sign up for a Google account, we keep the basic information that you give us. This can include your:

- Name
- Email address and password
- Birthday
- Gender
- Phone number
- Country

Things you do

When you use our services — for example, do a search on Google, get directions on Google Maps, or watch a video on YouTube — we collect data to make these services work for you. This can include:

- Things you search for
- Websites you visit
- Videos you watch
- Ads you click on or tap
- Your location
- Device information
- IP address and cookie data

Things you create

If you are signed in with your Google Account, we store and protect what you create using our services. This can include:

- Emails you send and receive on Gmail
- Contacts you add
- Calendar events
- Photos and videos you upload
- Docs, Sheets, and Slides on Drive

Privacy permissions

Manage your privacy settings with the Privacy Checkup

In just a few minutes, you can manage the types of data Google collects, update what personal information you share with friends or make public, and adjust the types of ads you would like Google to show you. You can change these settings as often as you want.

See what data is in your account at My Activity

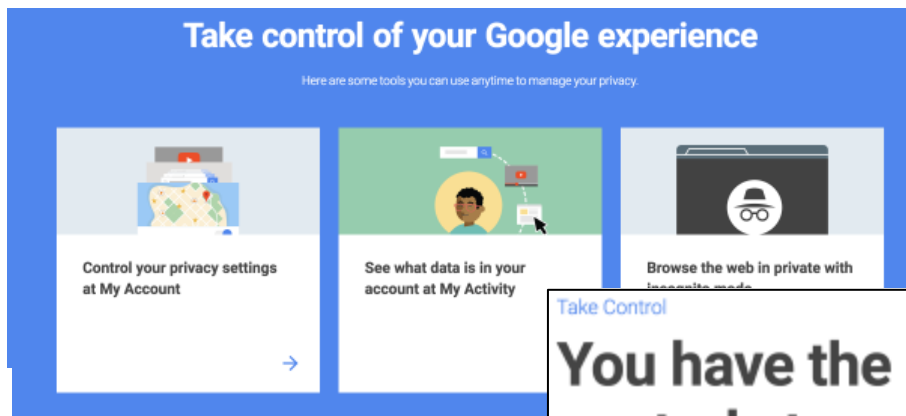

My Activity is the central place where you can find things you have searched, viewed, and watched using our services. To make it easier to recall your past online activity, we give you tools to search by topic, date, and product. You can permanently delete specific activities or even entire topics that you don't want associated with your account.

Take Control

You have the controls to manage your privacy.

Decide what data is associated with your account

From better commute options in Maps to quicker results in Search, the data we save with your account can make Google services more useful to you. Using Activity Controls, you can decide what gets associated with your account and pause the collection of specific types of data — like your searches and browsing activity, the places you go, and information from your devices.

Yes, allow calls and texts

Accept Your Notice of Privacy Practices

Under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 ("HIPAA"), Walgreens is required to provide you with a Notice of Privacy Practices that describes how we may use your information for treatment, payment and other purposes and that details your rights regarding the privacy of your health and medical information. We are also required to request that you acknowledge our delivery of this notice to you.

Notice of Privacy Practices

THIS NOTICE DESCRIBES HOW MEDICAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOU MAY BE USED AND DISCLOSED AND HOW YOU CAN GET ACCESS TO THIS INFORMATION. PLEASE REVIEW IT CAREFULLY.

We at Walgreens are required by law to maintain the privacy of Protected Health Information ("PHI") and to provide you with notice of our legal duties and privacy practices with respect to PHI. References to "Walgreens," "we," "us," and "our" include Walgreen Co. and the members of its affiliated covered entity. An affiliated covered entity is a group of organizations under common ownership or control who designate themselves as a single affiliated covered entity for purposes of compliance with the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act ("HIPAA"). Walgreens, its employees, workforce members and members of the Walgreens' affiliated covered entity who are involved in providing and coordinating health care are all bound to follow the terms of this Notice of Privacy Practices ("Notice"). The members of the Walgreens' affiliated covered entity will share PHI with each other for the treatment, payment and health care operations of the affiliated covered entity and as permitted by HIPAA and this Notice. For a complete list of the members of Walgreens' affiliated covered entity, please contact the Privacy Office.
